

Koos Malan is Professor of Public Law at the University of Pretoria, South Africa. He teaches, among other things, Constitutional Law, Administrative Law and Human Rights Law. He specialises in and has published on various aspects of constitutional theory, including constitutional sovereignty and supremacy, constitutional change and democracy as well as on minority rights and language rights. He also penned an academic monograph titled Politokrasie: 'n peiling van die dwanglogika van die territoriale staat en gedagtes vir 'n antwoord daarop (Politocracy: a survey of the coercive logic of the territorial government and thoughts for an answer to it) which was published by the Law Publishers of the University of Pretoria. The English version of the monograph was published in October 2012. He also is the author of a number of popular articles on matters relating to constitutional law in the public media such as Business Day, Beeld, Rapport and various Internet publications. He first completed an Honours degree in Political Science and International Politics at the University of Pretoria and then the degrees B Juris and LLB at the University of South Africa, where he also obtained his doctoral degree. Malan was previously a prosecutor and a magistrate and was attached to Justice College, the training section of the Department of Justice, as a lecturer. He is a founding member and was the first chairperson of the Vereniging van Regslui vir Afrikaans / Society of Lawyers for Afrikaans and is currently still serving on the steering committee of the society.